

United Way of Acadiana: United in Health Where Good Ideas Grow Into Healthier Communities November 12, 2026

Event Goal: United Way of Acadiana's United in Health will bring together community leaders, healthcare partners, nonprofits, and local stakeholders to explore collaborative solutions to food insecurity in Acadiana. This year's forum will highlight the opening of Jefferson Market and Deli, a project of UWA locally operated by Amis Grocery, as a catalyst for improving food access, strengthening neighborhood health, and creating lasting community impact. The event will also serve as a fundraising opportunity to support United Way of Acadiana's mission and community initiatives.

Event Format: Luncheon featuring keynote and local speakers, panel discussions, and community conversations focused on food access, nutrition, and the social determinants of health. The event will highlight innovative partnerships and strategies that are expanding access to healthy food and improving health outcomes across Acadiana.
